Did you know that strength training is essential to improving female health and bone density?

- Post-menopausal women have the highest rates of osteoporosis.
- The decrease in estrogen as a potent bone-builder, elevates the risk.
- Those taking steroids are at an elevated risk.
- By age 70, we only have about 50% to 55% of our muscle mass left.
- Studies continue to show that those who strength train over a period of time can help prevent bone loss and may help build new bone.
